WHERE TO STAY

Bluetopia Suites

Modern and sophisticated, these suites sit on the waterfront, featuring whitewashed exteriors with pops of blue, adding to the serene vibe of the property. This spot is located in Little Venice, overlooking the vast ocean and picture-perfect town. Choose between street view or sea view, with breakfast, drinks and a 12-hour front desk service, you'll be in good hands. Guests are able to sit on their terraces and marvel at the gorgeous views or nestle inside in their modern and comfortable suites before heading out for the day.

Bluetopia Suites, Anargiron, Mykonos, Greece, from Dhs607per night. Tel: (30) 228 902 4034. bluetopiamykonos.com

What to expect:

Climate: The summer months are hot and dry, with the winter months bringing warm and windy conditions. Rain is normally not an issue, but the rainiest seasons are from October to April, with the weather idyllic for a beach holiday from mid-May to October.

Language: Officially Greek, but you won't need to download Duolingo for a trip to this island as English is widely spoken.

Currency: Euros

Credit cards and banks: Restaurants, hotels and guest houses will accept credit and debit cards, but make sure to withdraw cash for when you visit markets, make small purchases or use public transport.

Amyth of Mykonos

Just a short drive from Mykonos port, this boho haven is one of the newest hotels to open on the island, offering secluded luxury close to the island's hotspots. Perched on the sleepy hills of Tourlous, overlooking Agios Stefanos beach, this boutique hotel features 17 one-bedroom suites, curated with relaxing earth-toned interiors, Mykonian stone walls, handcrafted wooden furnishings and natural decorations that honor its surroundings. Guests can lounge in private pools and hot tubs, whilst basking in panoramic ocean and sunset views.

Amyth of Mykonos, Agios Stefanos, Mykonos, Greece, rooms from Dhs2,810 per night in high season. Tel: (30) 228 907 7205. amythhotels.com/mykonos
